Art Brut

We'd taken our clothes off
In the wrong order
And you're leaving your shoes on
To make you look taller I can't say I'm not Enjoying the kissing
But I've a sneaky suspicion
That you're not really listening I know I shouldn't
Is this so wrong
To break from your kiss
To turn up a pop song I know I shouldn't
And It's possibly wrong
To break from your kiss
To turn up a pop song
I'm taking it slowly
I'll be reading the signs
I found my hand in a place
Where I can't tell if she minds Rolling around amongst our clothes on the floor
I can't help it
"Have you heard this song before?" I know I shouldn't
Is this so wrong
To break from your kiss
To turn up a pop song I know I shouldn't
And It's possibly wrong
To break from your kiss
To turn up a pop song
Then something angry
Muttered
Between two people,
Red and flustered We'd just kissed
And that's about it
It may as well have been Radio static I know I shouldn't
Is this so wrong
To break from your kiss
To turn up a pop song I know I shouldn't
And It's possibly wrong
To break from your kiss
To turn up a pop song
