

Straightjacket

Quinn XCII

She's a psycho from a midwest suburb
No straightjacket could hold her
Wild eyes, they would lure me in her trap
I go mad just to hold her
Until I noticed that something was strange
Out of my veins, there was no way back
Something went off in my brain
She was insane, here she goes again
A psycho from a midwest suburb
I woke up and I told her
You won't know me when the feelings all gone
And I tell everyone
And the look on your face will slowly come undone
'Cause it was all a front
And quietly, I say to your face
That you will need to find another place to stay
And now you won't know me when the feelings all gone
And I tell everyone, ayShe's a loose cannon with a temper, so absurd
Hiding from the police, yeah
Took pills with the name I'd never heard
But they will fool sleep, she fooled meThats when I noticed that something was strange
Out of my veins, there was no way back
Something went off in my brain
She was insane, here she goes again
A psycho from a midwest suburb
I woke up and I told her
You won't know me when the feelings all gone
And I tell everyone
And the look on your face will slowly come undone
'Cause it was all a front
And quietly, I say to your face
That you will need to find another place to stay
And now you won't know me when the feelings all gone
And I tell everyone, ayAnd I tell everyone, ay
And I tell everyone, ay
And I tell everyone, ay
And I tell everyone, ayI noticed that something was strange
Out of my veins, there was no way back
Something went off in my brain, she was insane
Here she goes again
A psycho from a midwest suburb
I woke up and I told herYou won't know me when the feelings all gone

And I tell everyone
And the look on your face will slowly come undone
'Cause it was all a front
And cryingly, I say to your face
That you will need to find another place to stay
And now you won't know me when the feelings all gone
And I tell everyone, ay And I tell everyone, ay
And I tell everyone, ay
And I tell everyone, ay
And I tell everyone, ay
