

Saving Savannah

Tracy Lawrence

Mommas heart is breaking, daddy's drinking again
This old house ain't heard laughter since I don't know when.
I got a call from her last Sunday.
She said everything was fine. But I know my baby sister.
I could tell she'd been crying. She never was good at lying.
So i'm saving Savannah.
The city ain't where she belongs.
If I have to burn down Atlanta, I'm bringing Savannah Back home.
20 miles out of Mary Adam I might as well be driving blind.
No idea where to start looking.
Afraid of what I'm gonna find.
I cash my paycheck on Friday and I'll be here 'till it's gone.
After that I'll think of something.
The only thing I know is I ain't going back alone.
Cause I'm saving Savannah.
The city ain't where she belongs.
If I have to burn down Atlanta, I'm bringing Savannah back home.
Nothing she can do to make me not love her.
I ain't trying to be no hero, just a brother.
If I have to burn to burn down Atlanta, I'm bringing Savannah back home.

Lyrics provided by <http://greatlyrics.net/>