

Something Has to Change

The Japanese House

You got the same train
And you took it back to the same place
You're back where you started It's the same thing
You keep trying to do something different
Over and over again Something has to change
Something has to change
Something has to change And it's the same thing
You're repeating yourself and it's the same girl
Who's giving you hell
And it's the same face
Your heart keeps breaking in the same place
Something has to change
Something has to change
Something has to change
Something has to change
Something has to change And it's the same thing
You're repeating yourself and it's the same girl
Who's giving you hell
And it's the same face
Your heart keeps breaking in the same place Something has to change
Something has to change
Something has to change
Something has to change And you look back
You're going round in circles
Your world feels just the same
Your heart keeps breaking in the same way
Something has to change
Something has to change
Something has to change
Something has to change
Something has to change
Something has to change
Something has to change
Something has to change

Lyrics provided by <http://greatlyrics.net/>