

Maybe You're the Reason

The Japanese House

[Intro]

Now tell me something

Is there a point to this?

Or are we living for the feeling when we look back on what we did and reminisce?[Verse 1]

'Cause I've looked within and I've read

But instead I keep focusing

On just how thin I can get

Now I'm looking for something else

I found myself; I'm someone else[Chorus]

I keep looking for something

Even though I know that it's not there

(Maybe you're the reason)

Every time I try to figure it out

You're the only thing I can think about

(Maybe you're the reason)

[Verse 2]

And I think I'm dying

'Cause this can't be living

Should I be searching for

Some kind of meaning?

Apathy's a funny feeling[Bridge]

I turned my gaze to the ceiling

Thanked a God I don't believe in for the scene outside

I tried my best at sleeping but my dreams were unappealing

So I searched for people in the landscape, passers by[Chorus]

I keep looking for something

Even though I know that it's not there

(Maybe you're the reason)

Every time I try to figure it out

You're the only thing I can think about

(Maybe you're the reason)

[Instrumental break][Chorus]

I keep looking for something

Even though I know that it's not there

(Maybe you're the reason)

Every time I try to figure it out

You're the only thing I can think about

(Maybe you're the reason)

Lyrics provided by <http://greatlyrics.net/>

