

Name

Nichole Nordeman

You woke up one day in a bad way
With a dark heart in a small cave
And decided to hide
For the long bitter night
But one day someone loved you Let the light in, made the old new From some water and mud wrote you new name in love
Now something about it just doesn't seem real Sometimes that's just how it feels
You are still a promise
Heartbeat of God
You may have forgotten
But He has not,
You are not your ashes
You are a flame
Do not ask the shadows
The light of the world knows
Knows your name There was one day, you were certain That he called you, 'cause you heard Him,
And the crowd disappeared,
Everything crystal clear
But then one day it was not so
Other voices you didn't know
From the fray and the fringe they were all weighing in Now you can't remember who has your heart
Well here's a start
You are still a promise
heartbeat of God,
You may have forgotten
but He has not
You are not your ashes
you are a flame
Do not ask the shadows
the light of the world knows You a friend of God, God the Son Blameless and forgiven one
The slave no more, finally free
Sins and errors are now redeemed
Oh beautiful and broken heart
Is safe and sound in His arms
You were chosen you were His
So remember this You are still a promise

You may have forgotten You are not your ashes
you are a flame
Do not ask shadows
the light of the world knows
Knows your name
He knows your name
You are not your ashes
you are a flame
Do not ask the shadows
the light of the world knows
Knows your name

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by <http://greatlyrics.net/>